Adriana struggled in high school. Unmotivated, she had a hard time visualizing a future for herself. That changed when she got involved with her Project Access Resource Center.

Adriana formed a bond with other youth in the program and found a mentor in the on-site staff. She attended college readiness and employment workshops to expand her knowledge and skills. She found the self-confidence that was missing before.

Through hard work and determination, Adriana recently graduated high school. Utilizing Project Access’ resources, she secured a job and scholarship, both of which will help her in the fall when she plans to enroll in college. Adriana aspires to become a teacher one day.

“Project Access helped me open my eyes to college and career options. I’m now inspired to tackle my personal goals.”
